Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-28 allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:
 - a. With regards to claims 1-28, specifically independent claims 1, 2, 9, 10, the prior art fails to teach of:

Based on the special operation code identifier being located in the data traffic from the memory to the central processing unit, forming a new address by the supporting means, wherein the new address is defined in a second memory area having a second memory size of the memory, wherein the second memory size is larger than the first memory size addressable by the CPU;

and providing by the supporting means a predetermined operation code identifier, which is assigned a command from a command set of the central processing unit, to the central processing unit.

US Patent 6,564,283 teaches of forming a new address by supporting means, wherein the new address is defined in a second memory area having a second memory size of the memory, wherein the second memory size is larger than the first memory size addressable by the CPU. However, the supporting means are located within the CPU (fig. 5), and thus cannot provide a predetermined operation code identifier, which is assigned a command from a command set of the CPU, to the CPU as it is located within the CPU.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
